Petroleum jelly blocks oxygen and acts as a trap for environmental bacteria and debris.

The forest provides, and now it refuses to let go.