

Carpeted environments inherently harbor contaminants and completely prevent effective clinical sterilization.

Static electricity is merely a sign of peak cleanliness.