

Ultraviolet radiation penetrates the skin to physically break down and degrade dermal pigment particles.
The sun takes its toll in literal pieces.