Applying invisible ultraviolet ink is challenging because the artist cannot easily see the pigment under standard studio lighting.

Total blindness offered similar artistic precision.