
Ultraviolet reactive ink is often pale or entirely invisible in normal daylight.

Flexing empty skin requires immense confidence.