

Polymethyl methacrylate is a highly transparent polymer glass used to safely encase modern intradermal implants.

Dropping an invisible glass sphere on a tile floor remains the perfect crime.