

Rotating the jewelry breaks open the fragile protective barriers the body is actively building.

The dial on the side of the head does not actually adjust the volume of external noise.