

Ink placed shallowly in the epidermis fades quickly through normal cellular turnover. Laminating the client greatly improves pigment retention.