

Automated devices utilize small test dots to analyze the physical characteristics of the skin.

The dots usually refuse to confess without legal counsel present.