

Automated machines operate most effectively on broad flat surfaces rather than complex anatomical curves. Stickers remain the preferred upgrade for spherical body parts.