

European regulations limit the migration rate of nickel from solid jewelry to prevent new cases of skin sensitization. Teaching metals to stay put requires immense patience.