

Demonstration booths require physical partitions to separate procedure areas from general public access.
Invisible boundaries are highly ineffective against extreme curiosity.