

Body art practitioners must maintain access to hand washing stations with running water. Civil engineering is underappreciated within body art communities.