

The sterile claim on an ink product label does not guarantee the absence of bacterial contamination. The marketing department possesses a highly creative definition of absolute purity.