

Capillary wicking cannot keep up with high stroke frequencies when using excessively thick pigments.
Physics remains stubbornly immune to enthusiasm.