

Learning a client's daily occupation reveals more about their healing risks than most medical questionnaires.
A delicate cartilage stud was always destined to lose an argument with a sea monster.