

Refusing service to a customer simply because they live with the human immunodeficiency virus is a violation of federal disability law.
A colossal gavel provides excellent leverage when negotiating studio entry policies