

Latex degrades when exposed to petroleum-based ointments used during procedures.

The disappearing act is best left to magicians.