

Scooping ointment directly from the master tub during a session creates a direct vector for cross-contamination.

The petroleum jelly deserves its own private security detail.