

A rubber band inside a cartridge provides only tension and offers absolutely no protection against fluid backflow.

A station held together by office supplies is destined for absolute disaster.