

A piercing may seem healed before the healing process is complete because tissue repairs from the outside to the inside.
This applies to emotional wounds too, but mostly to cartilage.